

Horse metaphor

Proud Arabian stallion or kind Haflinger

The Arabian as a proud horse, high, elegant, purebred and fast. We like the idea of riding this horse and making a good figure. We struggle to get up on the high horse, maybe our legs are too short, the horse also gets nervous because we are so clumsy and keep falling off. Then it might be better to choose a Haflinger. Granted, this one is not as elegant and not as fast, but who says that we can't do our rounds with it and have fun? After all, we don't have to be afraid of constantly falling off again and landing in the sand.

In other situations, you only dare to ride the Haflinger or even just a rocking horse. But you can cut a fine figure on an Arabian horse, if only you would dare and go for it. And once you have ridden the Arabian, you will realize how much fun it is for you.

The important thing is not the horse you ride, but that it is YOUR horse that suits you and on which you feel comfortable.
